

Overview of Health Savings Accounts (HSAs)¹

With Comparison to Archer MSAs, Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRAs) and Flexible Spending Accounts (FSAs)²

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Overview ²	A tax-exempt trust or custodial account established for the purpose of paying qualified medical expenses in conjunction with a high-deductible (“HD”) health plan. Comment: In brief: A supercharged Archer MSA — a portable, personal trust account for medical expenses, with much greater availability, liberalized funding, and increased contribution limits.	A tax-exempt trust or custodial account established for the purpose of paying qualified medical expenses in conjunction with a high-deductible (“HD”) health plan sponsored by a small employer, or self-employed individual. Comment: In brief: A portable, personal trust account for medical expenses, but with limited availability and funding, and more restricted contribution limits.	A benefit plan that is funded solely by the employer, and not through salary reduction, that reimburses the employee for qualified medical expenses. Comment: In brief: An employer bookkeeping account for medical expenses that allows carryover and accumulation, but with very limited portability.	An employer-sponsored benefit program typically funded by the employee with pre-tax contributions that reimburses the employee for qualified medical expenses, and is subject to a use-it-or-lose-it rule requiring forfeiture of unused amounts at the end of the year. Comment: In brief: An employer bookkeeping account for medical expenses funded by employee pre-tax contributions, with no carryover, accumulation, or portability.

¹ Health Savings Accounts are authorized pursuant to section 1201 of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003 (the “Act”), Pub. L. No. 108-173, which added § 223 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. The IRS has released guidance on Health Savings Accounts in Notice 2004-2, which was issued on December 22, 2003, and is expected to be published in the 2004-2 Internal Revenue Bulletin.

² Note: References herein to “IRC” mean the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Eligibility - General	An individual who is covered under a qualifying HD health plan. IRC § 223(c)(1)(A). It appears that this eligibility rule is applied separately to spouses (except that there are special rules where either spouse has family coverage). Such individual may not be covered under any other non-HD health plan which provides coverage for any benefit otherwise covered under the HD plan, except for certain exempted coverage and other statutorily “permitted insurance.” IRC § 223(c)(1).	An employee (or spouse of an employee) of a “small employer” that maintains an individual or family qualifying HD health plan covering that individual (employee or spouse), or a self-employed person (or the spouse of a self-employed person) maintaining an individual or family HD plan covering that individual (self-employed person or spouse). IRC § 220(c)(1).	An employee who satisfies the eligibility requirements as established by the employer, subject to IRC § 105(h) nondiscrimination rules.	An employee who satisfies the eligibility requirements as established by the employer, subject to IRC §§ 125 and 105(h) nondiscrimination rules (and who elects to contribute).

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Eligibility - High Deductible Plan Requirements	Must be covered by a qualifying HD health plan (generally, with no other health coverage). A qualifying HD health plan is a health plan (including a self-insured plan) which has an annual deductible not less than $1,000 for self-only coverage ($2,000 for family coverage) and has an out-of-pocket limit (other than for premiums) equal to $5,000 for self-only coverage (or $10,000 for family coverage). IRC § 223(c)(2)(A). Notice 2004-2, Q & A 7.	Must be covered by a qualifying HD health plan (generally, with no other health coverage). A qualifying HD health plan is a health plan which has an annual deductible between $1,700 and $2,600 for self-only coverage (or $3,450 and $5,150 for family coverage) and which has an out-of-pocket limit (other than for premiums) equal to $3,450 for self-only coverage (or $6,300 for family coverage). IRC § 220(c)(2).	None. Preventive Care: A plan will still qualify as a HD health plan even if it has no deductible for preventive care. IRC § 220(c)(2)(B)(ii). Preventive Care: A plan will still qualify as a HD health plan even if it has no deductible for preventive care. IRC § 223(o)(2)(C). It is not entirely clear what Congress intended “preventive care” to cover for this purpose. The IRS has asked for comments on the appropriate standard for preventive care. Notice 2004-2. Network Plans: A plan will not fail to qualify as a HD health plan just because the out-of-pocket limitation for services provided by non-network providers exceeds the annual HD health plan limits. IRC § 223(c)(2)(D).	None.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Eligibility - High Deductible Plan Requirements (cont'd)	In the case of family coverage, a health plan with stacked deductibles will not qualify if benefits are provided for any individual before the applicable family deductible is met. More generally, a HD plan may not provide any benefits for a year until the applicable deductible is met. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 3. Comment: The foregoing requirement raises the question whether a health plan can qualify as a HD plan if it provides more liberal coverage for prescription drugs, provides more liberal cost-sharing for certain benefits, or includes a related HRA or FSA. The IRS has asked for comments on the relationship between a HSAs and HRAs or FSAs. Notice 2004-2.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Account Requirements	A trust created or organized for the purpose of paying the qualified medical expenses of the account beneficiary which meets certain special IRC requirements. IRC § 223(d)(1).	The trustee must be a bank, life insurance company (as defined in IRC § 816), or approved non-bank custodian. (Where assets are held by a life insurance company, contributions are excluded from DAC tax under IRC § 848.) The other special IRC requirements are: (1) except for rollover contributions from an HSA (and also an Archer MSA), no contribution will be accepted unless it is in cash and does not exceed the applicable contribution limits; (2) no part of the trust assets are invested in life insurance contracts; (3) the assets of the trust are not commingled with other property in a common trust or investment fund; and (4) an individual's possessory interest in an HSA account is nonforfeitable. IRC § 223(d)(1).	No requirement that an account be funded by the employer. Typically, reimbursed amounts are paid directly from an employer's general assets.	No requirement that an account be funded by the employer. Typically, reimbursed amounts are paid directly from an employer's general assets.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Account Status/Ownership	Tax-exempt funded trust or custodial account owned by an individual. IRC § 223(d).	Tax-exempt funded trust or custodial account owned by the individual. IRC § 220(d).	Typically, an employer bookkeeping account. A covered employee's rights are typically those of an unsecured, general creditor and are limited by the terms of the HRA.	Typically, an employer bookkeeping account. A covered employee's rights are typically those of an unsecured general creditor, and are limited by the terms of the FSA.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Account Funding/ Use of a Cafeteria Plan	Either an individual or employer may contribute to an account holder's HSA. IRC § 223(a). There is no prohibition against both an employer and an eligible individual making contributions to an eligible individual's HSA in the same year. An HSA may be offered as part of an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan. IRC § 125(d)(2).	An account holder (employee or spouse) may contribute to an MSA. Alternatively, the employee's employer may contribute to the account holder's MSA. However, if an employer makes a contribution to an MSA for a given year, the account holder of that MSA may not contribute to any MSA for that given year. IRC § 220(b)(5).	Amounts contributed to an HRA cannot be paid through employee salary reduction and must only be paid through employer contributions. Notice 2002-45, Sec. I, 2002-28 IRB 93. Employer contributions to an HRA may not be attributable to salary reduction or otherwise provided under an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan. Notice 2002-45, Sec. IV, 2002-28 IRB 93.	Amounts are typically contributed as pre-tax employee contributions as part of an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Account Funding/ Use of a Cafeteria Plan (cont'd)	Contributions may be made for a year at any time prior to the time (without extensions) for filing the eligible individual's income tax return for that year. IRC § 223(d)(4)(B).	Contributions may be made for a year at any time prior to the time (without extensions) for filing the eligible individual's income tax return for that year. IRC § 220(d)(4)(B).

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Contribution Limits	Maximum contributions (calculated on a monthly basis) for an eligible individual are the lesser of 100% of the annual deductible of the HD plan (disregarding any deductible for out-of-network services) or $2,600 for self-only coverage (or $5,150 in the case of family HD coverage). IRC § 223(b)(2)(limits are indexed). Note: The limit is zero for a Medicare eligible individual (e.g., an individual who has attained age 65). IRC § 220(b)(7) Note: There is no requirement that the individual have earnings. Also, the limit is zero for a Medicare eligible individual (e.g., an individual who has attained age 65). IRC § 223(b)(7) The same annual contribution limit applies whether an employee, an employer, or a self-employed person makes the contributions. Comment: There is a potential gap in coverage of out-of-pocket expenses.	Generally 65% of the annual deductible (where individual HD coverage) or 75% of the annual deductible (where family HD coverage). IRC § 220(b). Note: The limit is zero for a Medicare eligible individual (e.g., an individual who has attained age 65). IRC § 220(b)(7) The same annual contribution limit applies whether an employee, an employer, or a self-employed person makes the contributions.	There are no statutorily prescribed limits to the amount of contributions that may be made to an HRA. An employer sponsoring the HRA, however, may place limits on contribution amounts by including plan language to that effect. HRA contributions to a separate fund are potentially subject to IRC § 419 deduction limits.	There are no statutorily prescribed limits to the amount of contributions that may be made to an FSA. An employer sponsoring the FSA, however, may place limits on contribution amounts by including plan language to that effect. Amounts may be effectively limited by the IRC § 125 cafeteria plan concentration and nondiscrimination rules.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Contribution Limits (cont'd)	Employer contributions are not subject to the deduction limits of IRC § 419. Notice 2004-2, Q &A 36. Comment: Because HD coverage can permit up to $5,000/$10,000 of out-of-pocket exposure, there could be a gap in funding medical expenses. This would increase the desirability of coordination with HRA or FSA, if possible.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Tax Treatment of Contributions	Employee Contributions: Contributions by an eligible individual to an HSA are deductible in computing adjusted gross income. Accordingly, the contributions are deductible whether or not the eligible individual itemizes deductions. IRC § 223(a). Employer Contributions: Contributions by an employer to an eligible individual's HSA (including pre-tax contributions made through an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan) are treated as employer-provided coverage under an accident or health plan, excludable from gross income and are not subject to income tax withholding. IRC §§ 106(d); 3401(a)(22). Employer contributions are not subject to FICA. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 19.	Employee Contributions: Contributions by an eligible individual to an Archer MSA are deductible in computing adjusted gross income. Accordingly, the contributions are deductible whether or not the eligible individual itemizes deductions. IRC § 220(a); Notice 96-53, Q & A 15, 1996-2 CB 219. Employer Contributions: Contributions by an employer to an eligible individual's Archer MSA are excludable from gross income, are not subject to withholding for income tax, and are not subject to other employment taxes (i.e., Social Security and Medicare taxes (FICA), federal unemployment tax (FUTA) or railroad retirement tax). IRC § 220(a); Notice 96-53, Q & A 16, 1996-2 CB 219.	Coverage and reimbursements of medical care expenses of an employee and the employee's spouse and dependents are generally excludable from the employee's gross income under IRC §§ 105 and 106. Notice 2002-45, Sec. 1, 2002-28 IRB 93.	Pre-tax contributions are not subject to tax under IRC § 125. Reimbursements of medical care expenses of an employee and the employee's spouse and dependents are generally excludable from the employee's gross income under IRC §§ 105 and 106. Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.125-2, Q & A 7.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Catch-up Contributions	Individuals who have attained age 55 before the close of the taxable year and are not Medicare eligible (e.g., age 65) may contribute an additional $500 (calculated on a monthly basis) to an HSA for 2004 ($600 for 2005, $700 for 2006, $800 for 2007, $900 for 2008, $1,000 for 2009 and beyond). IRC § 223(b)(3).	None.	Not applicable.	Not applicable.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Coordination of Contribution Limits With Respect to Other Accounts or Arrangements	Maximum contributions allowed to an HSA for any given year are reduced by any contributions made to an Archer MSA in the same year. IRC § 223(b)(4)(A).	Maximum contributions allowed to an HSA for any given year are reduced by any contributions made to an Archer MSA in the same year. IRC § 223(b)(4)(A).	None.	None.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Nondiscrimination	An employer who makes contributions into an HSA for any employee is required to make comparable contributions for all comparable participating employees. IRC § 4980G.	An employer who makes contributions into an Archer MSA for any employee is required to make comparable Archer MSA contributions for all comparable participating employees. IRC § 4980E.	Where an HRA is self-insured, the HRA is subject to the nondiscrimination rules for self-insured medical expense reimbursement plans under IRC § 105(h).	An FSA is subject to the nondiscrimination rules under the IRC § 125 cafeteria plan provisions and also under IRC § 105(h) for self-insured arrangements.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Permissible Account Benefits	Reimbursement of qualified medical expenses (as defined in § 213(d) of the IRC) (including OTC drugs) pertaining to the account holder, spouse, or any qualifying dependents, but only to the extent that such amounts are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. IRC § 223(d)(2)(A). Funds from an HSA may not be used to purchase health insurance, except if used to purchase continuation coverage (i.e., COBRA), qualified long-term care insurance, health insurance while unemployed, or, for individuals eligible for Medicare, any health insurance other than a Medicare supplemental policy. IRC § 223(d)(2)(B). Thus, an HSA can be used to pay premiums on Medicare Part A or Part B, Medicare HMO, and the employee share of premiums for employer-sponsored retiree health insurance, but not to pay premiums on Medigap policies. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 27. Other distributions are permitted, subject to tax and penalties.	Reimbursement of qualified medical expenses (as defined in § 213(d) of the IRC) (including OTC drugs) pertaining to the account holder, spouse, or any qualifying dependents. An HRA may not reimburse a medical expense that is attributable to a deduction allowed under IRC § 213 for any prior taxable year. Funds from an Archer MSA may not be used to purchase health insurance, except if used to purchase continuation coverage (i.e., COBRA), qualified long-term care insurance, or health insurance while unemployed. IRC § 220(d)(2)(B). Other distributions are permitted, subject to tax and penalties.	Reimbursement of qualified medical expenses (as defined in § 213(d) of the IRC) (including OTC drugs) pertaining to the account holder, spouse, or any qualifying dependents. An HRA may not reimburse a medical expense that is attributable to a deduction allowed under IRC § 213 for any prior taxable year. Reimbursements for insurance covering medical expenses as defined in § 213(d)(1)(D) may be permissible under an HRA (including amounts paid for premiums for accident or health coverage for current employees, retirees, and COBRA qualified beneficiaries) (but note HIPAA issue). Notice 2002-45, Sec. II, 2002-28 IRB 93. An HRA may not permit the participant to cash out credits or use credits for other benefits.	Reimbursement of qualified medical expenses (as defined in § 213(d) of the IRC) (including OTC drugs) pertaining to the account holder, spouse, or any qualifying dependents. Qualified medical expenses do not include expenses pertaining to (1) health insurance premiums; and (2) long-term care services. IRC § 106(c). An FSA may not permit the participant to cash out credits or use credits for other benefits.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
General Coordination With Other Accounts or Arrangements	Funds from an Archer MSA may be rolled over into an HSA. IRC § 220(f)(5). However, rollovers from HRAs or FSAs to HSAs are not permitted. Notice 2004-2, Q&A 23. Maximum contributions allowed to an HSA for any given year are reduced by any contributions made to an Archer MSA in the same year. IRC § 223(b)(4)(A). An HSA may be offered as part of an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan. IRC § 125(d)(2).	Funds from an Archer MSA may be rolled over into an HSA. IRC § 220(f)(5). Although a HD plan may be part of an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan under which a health FSA is offered, an Archer MSA must be administered separate from an IRC § 125 cafeteria plan. Notice 96-53, Q & A 8, 1996-2 CB 219. Comment: The impact of maintaining an HRA or FSA in connection with an Archer MSA is unclear.	An HRA may be coordinated with an FSA, subject to certain rules, e.g., mutually exclusive coverage, layering of coverage (FSA first). If coverage is provided under both an HRA and an FSA for the same medical care expense, amounts available under an HRA must be exhausted before reimbursements may be made from the FSA. Notice 2002-45, Sec. V, 2002-28 IRB 93. Under no circumstances may an employee be reimbursed for the same medical expense by both an HRA and an FSA. Notice 2002-45, Sec. V, 2002-28 IRB 93.	An FSA may be coordinated with an HRA, subject to certain rules, e.g., mutually exclusive coverage, layering of coverage (FSA first). If coverage is provided under both an HRA and an FSA for the same medical care expense, amounts available under an HRA must be exhausted before reimbursements may be made from the FSA. Notice 2002-45, Sec. V, 2002-28 IRB 93. Under no circumstances may an employee be reimbursed for the same medical expense by both an HRA and an FSA. Notice 2002-45, Sec. V, 2002-28 IRB 93.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Tax Treatment of Distributions	Distributions for qualified medical expenses incurred after the HSA was established are generally not taxable. IRC § 223(f)(1). Any amount paid or distributed out of an HSA which is not used exclusively to pay the qualified medical expenses of the account holder is includable in the gross income of such holder. IRC § 220(f)(2). In addition, such amounts are subject to a 10% penalty. IRC § 223(f)(4). Penalty Exceptions: IRC § 223(f)(4) includes an exception (but only for the penalty) to the above exclusivity requirement for distributions made after an individual dies or becomes disabled, IRC § 223(f)(4)(B), or reaches the Medicare eligibility age (age 65). IRC § 223(f)(4)(C).	Distributions for qualified medical expenses are generally not taxable. Notice 2002-45, Sec. I, 2002-28 IRB 93. Any amount paid or distributed out of an Archer MSA which is not used exclusively to pay the qualified medical expenses of the account holder is includable in the gross income of such holder. IRC § 220(f)(2). In addition, such amounts are subject to a 15% penalty. IRC § 220(f)(4). Penalty Exceptions: IRC § 220(f)(4) includes an exception (but only for the penalty) to the above exclusivity requirement for distributions made after an individual dies or becomes disabled, IRC § 220(f)(4)(B), or reaches the Medicare eligibility age (age 65). IRC § 220(f)(4)(C).	Distributions for qualified medical expenses are generally not taxable. Notice 2002-45, Sec. I, 2002-28 IRB 93. Employer-sponsored HRAs may not reimburse non-qualified medical expenses or any other expenses. Notice 2002-45, Sec. II, 2002-28 IRB 93.	Distributions for qualified medical expenses are generally not taxable. Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.125-2, Q & A 7. Employer-sponsored FSAs may not reimburse non-qualified medical expenses or any other expenses. Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.125-2, Q & A 7.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Portability/Carryover of Funds	An HSA belongs to the individual owner and is portable between jobs. IRC § 223(f)(5). Amounts not distributed by the end of a taxable year may be carried over into the next year. IRC § 223(d)(1)(E).	An Archer MSA belongs to individual owner and is portable between jobs. IRC § 220(f)(5); Notice 96-53, Q & A 1, 1996-2 CB 219. Amounts not distributed by the end of a taxable year may be carried over into the next year. IRC § 220(d)(1)(E).	Participants in an HRA may carry forward any unused portion of the maximum dollar amount at the end of a coverage period to increase the maximum reimbursement amount in subsequent coverage periods. Notice 2002-45, Sec. I, 2002-28 IRB 93.	Amounts contributed to an FSA that are not reimbursed during the applicable coverage period are forfeited and may not be carried forward into a subsequent coverage period (“use it or lose it”). Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.125-2, Q & A 5.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Death/Divorce	Death: If the account holder's spouse is the designated beneficiary, following the death of the account holder and the transfer of interest, the account continues to be treated as an HSA with the spouse as the account holder. IRC § 223(f)(8)(A). If, by reason of death, a spouse who is not named as the beneficiary, or any other individual, acquires an interest in an HSA, then the account is no longer an HSA, and an amount equal to the fair market value of the account assets is includable in such person's income. IRC § 223(f)(8)(B). Divorce: The transfer of all or part of an individual's interest in an HSA, which is incident to divorce, is not considered a taxable transfer, and the transferred interest is thereafter treated as an HSA. IRC § 223(f)(7). Note: An HSA is not subject to the COBRA rules.	Death: If the account holder's spouse is the designated beneficiary, following the death of the account holder and the transfer of interest, the account continues to be treated as an Archer MSA with the spouse as the account holder. IRC § 220(f)(8)(A). If, by reason of death, a spouse who is not named as the beneficiary, or any other individual, acquires an interest in an Archer MSA, then the account is no longer an Archer MSA, and an amount equal to the fair market value of the account assets is includable in such person's income. IRC § 220(f)(8)(B). Divorce: The transfer of all or part of an individual's interest in an Archer MSA, which is incident to divorce, is not considered a taxable transfer, and the transferred interest is thereafter treated as an Archer MSA. IRC § 220(f)(7). Note: An Archer MSA is not subject to the COBRA rules.	There are no special rules regarding death or divorce. Subject to the terms of the HRA, coverage can continue to a spouse or dependents of a deceased employee. The impact of the COBRA rules on HRAs is unclear; additional guidance on this subject has been requested from the IRS.	There are no special rules regarding death or divorce. Subject to the terms of the FSA, it might be possible to continue coverage to a spouse or dependents of a deceased employee, subject to use-it-or-lose-it rule. FSAs are subject to special COBRA rules.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Administration - General	HSA assets are held by a qualified trustee or custodian, but an individual owner may direct distributions and, where applicable, investments. The trustee or custodian of an HSA can be different from the HD plan provider. The trustee or custodian may require proof or certification of the HSA owner's eligibility to contribute to the account. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 10.	Archer MSA assets are held by a qualified trustee or custodian, but an individual owner may direct distributions and, where applicable, investments.	An HRA is generally administered by the employer, subject to the terms of the HRA document.	An FSA is generally administered by the employer, subject to the terms of the FSA document.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Administration - Substantiation	No substantiation is required prior to reimbursement or distribution. Presumably the account holder of an HSA must substantiate any claimed reimbursements for medical expenses to the IRS if requested. Debit or credit cards can be used to receive distributions from HSAs. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 37.	No substantiation is required prior to reimbursement or distribution. If requested by the IRS, the account holder of an Archer MSA must substantiate any claimed reimbursements. Notice 96-53, Q & A 23, 1996-2 CB 219.	Each medical expense submitted for reimbursement must be substantiated prior to reimbursement. Notice 2002-45, Sec. II, 2002-28 IRB 93. See also Rev. Rul. 2003-43, 2003-21 IRB 814, with regard to the application of the substantiation rules in connection with the use of debit or credit cards.	Each medical expense submitted for reimbursement must be substantiated prior to reimbursement. Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.125-2, Q & A 7. See also Rev. Rul. 2003-43, 2003-21 IRB 814, with regard to the application of the substantiation rules in connection with the use of debit or credit cards.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Administration – Information Reporting	Employer contributions to an HSA must be reported on the employee's Form W-2. Reporting for HSAs will be similar to information reporting for Archer MSAs. The IRS will release forms and instructions. Notice 2004-2, Q & A 34. The 2004 Form W-2 contains specific references to HSAs for reporting of amounts in Box 12. Although it is likely that a new Form 1099-HSA will be required to be filed by the trustee, no draft of that form is currently available. New Form 8889, Health Savings Accounts, as referenced in the 2004 Form W-2, instructions, will likely be required to be filed with an employee's Form 1040 to report contributions to and distributions from HSAs.	Employer contributions are required to be reported on the employee's Form W-2, in Box 12. In addition, distributions from MSAs are reported to recipients on Form 1099-MSA. Employees must file Form 8853, Archer MSAs and LT Care Insurance Contracts, with Form 1040 to report any contributions to and distributions from MSAs.	There are no information reporting requirements applicable to amounts that an employer allocates to HRAs. HRAs as employee welfare benefit plans under ERISA may be subject to annual reporting on Form 5500. Although Rev. Rul. 2003-43, 2003-21 IRB 935, issued on May 6, 2003, states that payments made under employer-provided expense reimbursements to medical service providers through debit, credit, and stored value cards are reportable by the employer on form 1099-MISC, the Act provides an exception from the reporting provisions for medical care payments made under HRAs and FSAs.	There are no information reporting requirements applicable to amounts elected to be contributed to FSAs. FSAs as employee welfare benefit plans under ERISA may be subject to annual reporting on Form 5500. Although Rev. Rul. 2003-43, 2003-21 IRB 935, issued on May 6, 2003, states that payments made under employer-provided expense reimbursements to medical service providers through debit, credit, and stored value cards are reportable by the employer on form 1099-MISC, the Act provides an exception from the reporting provisions for medical care payments made under FSAs and HRAs.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
ERISA Application	The application of ERISA to an HSA, particularly one funded with employer contributions, is currently unclear. Treatment as an ERISA plan, or part of an ERISA plan, may entail reporting requirements for the employer and also potential fiduciary issues. To the extent an HSA can be viewed as a supercharged version of an Archer MSA, which the Service has previously analogized to an IRA, then it may be possible that an HSA escapes ERISA application absent significant endorsement activities by an employer. See Notice 96-53, 1996-2 CB 219; ERISA Interpretive Bulletin 99-1 (DOL Reg. § 2510.3-2(d)).	The application of ERISA to an Archer MSA, particularly one funded with employer contributions is currently unclear. Treatment as an ERISA plan, or part of an ERISA plan, may entail reporting requirements for the employer and also potential fiduciary issues. In Notice 96-53, the Service analogized MSAs to IRAs. The Department of Labor's view on IRAs is that an employer who simply provides employees with the opportunity for making contributions to an IRA through payroll deductions does not thereby establish a "pension plan" within the meaning of ERISA. However, if an employer endorses an IRA, as determined by all the facts and circumstances, the IRA may constitute an ERISA plan. ERISA Interpretive Bulletin 99-1 (DOL Reg. § 2510.3-2(d)).	An HRA is an ERISA plan subject to reporting and disclosure obligations.	An FSA is an ERISA plan subject to reporting and disclosure obligations.

	Health Savings Account (HSA)	Archer MSA	Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA)	Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Effective Date/Cut-off Date	Effective Date: January 1, 2004. P.L. 108-173. Cut-off date: None The IRS has asked for comments on whether transition relief should be provided in cases of inappropriate coordination of a HD plan with other coverage. Notice 2004-2.	Effective Date: December 21, 2000 (for Archer MSAs), P.L. 106-554, and January 1, 1997 (for Medical Savings Accounts), P.L. 104-191. Cut-off Date: December 31, 2003. Note: While not entirely clear, the legislative history of the Act suggests that individuals with established Archer MSAs may be able to continue to contribute to their Archer MSAs, and that employers who have established Archer MSA plans for their employees by December 31, 2003 may be able to permit employees to establish Archer MSA accounts after the cut-off date even if the employees never had such an account previously. IRC § 220(i).	Effective Date: Status clarified in Notice 2002-45, 2002-28 IRB 93. Cut-off Date: None	Effective Date: Established in IRC § 125 and subsequent regulations. Cut-off Date: None